

James for President!

Trinity Hall MCR really does deserve its moniker of “best MCR in Cambridge”, and owes its warm and relaxed atmosphere to all of its members – you! A good MCR committee works hard to make it easy for the famous THMCR community to stick together and provide a welcoming social backdrop to the chaos of Cambridge life, and I am absolutely committed to this cause.

As president, I will fight to represent you to the College authorities, on all the issues that most matter to you, including grad hall prices, room rents, and concerns over the effects of University expansion and the upcoming spending cuts on MCR life. Most importantly, I will always be happy to listen to your concerns so I can best work for you.

My role as MCR secretary throughout this year has involved a lot of communication between the committee and all MCR members, something which any MCR president must carry forward to make Trinity Hall the place we all want it to be. My work with the committee has given me an essential understanding of how College functions, and how best to ensure the continuing success of the MCR.

Of course, one of the most important jobs of the committee is to give everyone an excuse to take a break occasionally with some fantastic ents. I’ve been involved in executing many events over the past year, and was heavily involved in the planning and running of freshers’ fortnight. As president, I will work hard to protect the ents we all know and love, as well as building on the enormous success of last year’s Marshall McLuhan Symposium and planning more relaxed events near College Accommodation (like freshers’ week’s film night) for when we only have an hour to spare from the books.
